THE MORALITY OF MOVIES

President Neff Asserts That They Are Educational and Point Great Lesson.

life as it is, and he believes that cen-sorship should be neither prudish nor prejudiced. He asserted that classical works of art which are exhibited and admired in galleries in all of the large cities, if thrown on a moving-picture screen, would start something like a riot, and he cites this example to show that many people regard the "movies" with the eye of suspicion. He expressed the same view with regard to depicting suicide and murder scenes in moving pictures. No lurid or gruesome details should be shown, he declared, but as these things are a part of life, and may contain valuable moral lessons, they ought not to be excluded altogether.

The working people, who have no time for any amusement during the week, he said find an hour of relaxation at the picture shows on Sunday, a whole fam-ily going for a quarter. Mr. Neff modestly termed the mov-ing picture as one of the greatest benefits to humanity, asserting that it has educational and moral possibilities that are as yet entirely undeveloped. He said he could prove by figures that both crime and the use of intoxicants have been reduced by the introduction of picture shows, and that they have al-

Concrete suggestions as to methods of obtaining reforms in taxation i Virginia were made last night by dent of the Motion-Picture Exhibitors'
League of America, who attended the organization of a Virginia branch at the Jefferson Hotel yesterday.

Mr. Neff strongly urged that if the moving picture is to retain its dramatic and educational value, it must show life as it is and be believed that any the constant of the time was consumed in discussion of this subject shows the public interest in tax matshows the public interest in tax mat-ters. James J. Creamer, referring to ters. James J. slow to make changes in the system.

But the time has come when Virginia must get out of the class of only four States remaining that have not passed tax reform measures. The rate, he said, cannot be reduced until equalization is gained. He was inclined to prefer the New York plan of taxing mortgages, so that money can be borrowed at a lower rate.

If each county and city paid its own criminal expenses, the State tax rate could be reduced, said Mr. Cox, and this would make it easier to secure passage of an equalization bill. He referred briefly to his aspiration to become Speaker of the House.

President Neff spoke at some length upon the subject of the national board of censors, saying in substance, that it was ineffectual because it was self-constituted, and has no authority over local consorships, and that it is inefficient because most of its members know nothing about moving pictures. He unfolded a plan for a national constrained at the unfolded a plan for a national constrained at the person cannot be forged, and that the one that has the best chance to get through the Legislature. He, too, favored having localities pay their own criminal expenses. Paragraph Pulpit Belief in God.

It is urged against the Unitarians that they do not believe in God. It is not an argument; it is a foolish error. When a member of the orthodox church, I believed in God, but as a Unitarian minister to-day, I find that the only change in my faith is that it has grown more ample and more sure. The conception has changed, but the conviction grows more clear with each new day of Unitarian progress. This statement is not mere speculation, but is the voice of experience. If you have been taught to believe that Unitarianism is simply unbelief, you may count it a mistake.—Unitarian Publicity Committee.—Advertisement.
